Introduction

books.lk is a place where books are sold online, divided according to various categories. Magazines, Sinhala books, second hand books, discounted books, a large number of national and international books are sold here as expected by the consumer.
In fact, it is a wonderful online book fair that has gone beyond the traditional book selling and created using technology to suit the 21st century.

But at the same time, buttons and icons were used to make a customer uncomfortable while visiting this website. Also, the use of colors was very primitive and when using colors, they were not properly used in relation to the theme of this website.
Also, in many places, the relevant books did not have proper cover pages.
The forms for the account page, address page, and checkout page were not designed in a user-friendly manner.
The content of about us, FAQ, Contact Us pages was not clearly content and organized.
The icons and buttons that should be applied to the relevant places were not used in a user-friendly manner and not well designed. This had a way of boring a user.

Therefore, we used this website to redesign. Firstly, we collect user issues from our users. So, we use brainstorming and interviews as an ideation method to collect requirements.

We again combined the relevant forms and webpages and colors in a user-friendly manner so that the user stays on the website for a long time. And it is attractive to the user and does not become boring to the user.
Finally, we redesign an attractive user-friendly outcome.

Summary

In this module, we first selected websites with weak structures. Then we chose the worst site among them for this project. So the website we chose is book.lk.

We selected three users from the book.lk website. There are three types of users: primary, secondary and tertiary. We took usability issues from users and gathered requirements to make changes. So, we had to create new wireframes to solve usability problems. These wireframes were created using the Figma tool based on new interface concepts as it has many features. There are two types of wireframes. (Variant 1 and Variant 2 - this means the two types of sketches that are suitable and most suitable.) From it we have selected the best wireframe for website interface design. We created visually appealing and well-structured interfaces.

We used Figma's prototyping feature to make our interfaces work smoothly. Also, we explained in the video how our interfaces work, page and button navigation, pop-up messages and how to use the site without confusion.

Future Work

Books.lk is a disorganized website. We intend to continue with this website. We have already designed some user-friendly interfaces.

We want to improve the response time to requests. We would like to improve the database's security. We have a plan to improve the validation process while also improving security. If this occurs, users will be able to sell and buy their products in an efficient and secure manner. Also, when developing a backend, I want to use good software and a language that will produce good results for the books.lk company.

We can also use good transaction methods when dealing with the store.

It is very easy for users to buy online store products when there are many transaction methods available. We have an idea to discuss with the company books.lk, and if they like it, we would like to give them our developed website.

Methodology

Requirements and Data Analysis

- After choosing the website we decided to make a gantt chart.
- Firstly, we identified the users and stakeholders in the Blinkee website.
- Identified Usability issues in the website.
- Rating the usability issues identified based on contextual inquiry
- Then we categorize to all the users to user groups such as

  Primary Users = The direct access users of the system

  Secondary Users = use the system occasionally

  Tertiary Users = affected by the introduction of the system
- We use to Ideation methods to collect requirement from users:
  - Brainstorming
  - Interviews
- After the requirements gathering, we move to make user personas and Interview video transcripts.
- Then we redesign the web pages.
- Firstly, we make wireframes to low fidelity interfaces after designing high fidelity interfaces using tools.

Implementation

- We use Figma to make wireframes (Low fidelity interfaces).
- High fidelity interface = Figma

Testing

- Manual testing by using sample outputs.
